

---

In brief
Can you solve museum case?

MUSEUM visitors can help solve a crime with the ghost of a former tour guide this weekend.
Staff at the Museum of Canterbury are taking part in the Museum at Night scheme tomorrow and Saturday.
Children, aged seven or over, and their families can take part between 6pm and 8pm. Admission is £5 for children. Accompanying adults go free. Call 01227 473032.

Happy to be stranded

Report by Charlie Parkinson and Paul McMullan

TERRIBLE weather may have stranded two international Italian rowers in Kent, but it may provide an unexpected boost in "eco tourism" for the area.

Giacomo de Stefano and fellow oarsman Jacopo Ebis were heading from London to Istanbul in Turkey in a Viking replica boat, when squalls made them take urgent cover in Whitstable.

Yacht club secretary Sally Gostello said: "The weather has been so atrocious we had to cancel the RNLI Pursuit race last Sunday."

"But then these two Italian rowers washed up. I must say one of them was pretty dinky and they were both really nice guys."

"When they told us they were using muscle power alone to get all the way to Turkey to raise awareness of pollution and sea tourism, it was the best we could do to put them up."

After tracking Giacomo down to a bunk room at the yacht club, he said becoming stranded in Whitstable was one of the best things which had ever happened to him.

Love affair

He said: "I love Whitstable and we could never have expected to end up in such a wonderful place. We are doing interviews with UK and USA yachting magazines tomorrow and we hope to help put it on the sustainable tourism map."

Giacomo is passionate about

not using aviation fuel, or even petrol for cars and buses, to make travel possible, and now wants to promote Whitstable Oyster boats as an eco tourism facility.

The pair were given a night out on the town by Johnny Green, an ex-rodie for The Clash, and Richard Green, who is not related to the Whitstable Oyster Fishery.

Company Giacomo added: "The both gave us such a warm, nice and we met a lovely lady called Peter who showed us a picture of the town and its historic oyster boats."

"We discussed the possibility of using and building the old oyster boats to bring high quality to a different form of tourism to Whitstable."

"Our trip is to promote a sustainable tourism, as well as encouraging the local economy. We eat horrible plastic food which in the same the same as and when I went out in Whitstable and was offered a cigarette said 'no'. I wanted a good local food of too."

"With the interviews and publicity we are getting for us, we will be telling everyone about Whitstable and the wonderful ecological possibilities of the town."

One million stoves

The pair set off from Harwich Thames on April 15, and after completing their 4,000 mile trip in October, after six months of million mile stoves.

They moored near the village of Faversham, at Faversham while they waited for the oyster boats to improve. Faversham is a village in Giacomo's home town.

"The people here have been so generous and kind, showing us a beautiful town, with historic buildings and a love of the sea which makes me think of home."

To follow the pair's journey visit www.museumboston.com

CAROL PETERS
Unit 2, Timberyard Ind Est, Manston Road, Ramsgate

COME AND ENJOY A DAY OUT OR HOLIDAY WITH US

London Eye & Two Course Curry Lunch Thursday 22 July A beautiful sight on the eye followed by a delicious lunch £30.00	Do not miss out on our Traditional British Holiday in Bathhouse Sat 3-Sat 10 July Half board & includes excursions A fantastic break! £385.00	Cyril De Solid at Wembley Arena Wednesday 28 July Dramatic performance Amazing breathtaking performance! £20.00 includes admission
Carpet of Flowers at Arundel Wednesday 2 June A magnificent 80-foot carpet of flowers! £22.00	RHS Chelsea Flower Show Saturday 29 May You will not want to miss this spectacular event! £80.00	Warner Littleton House Hampstead Mon 5-Tue 6 July Half board & includes excursions £220.00
Grand Express An indulgent high tea with Champagne Friday 27 August Hove-Victoria £195.00	Mamma Mia at the Prince of Wales Theatre Friday 11 June Musical performance £40.00	Claude Monet's Gardens Giverny via environmental Thursday 1 July Beautiful day out Please note: Early start. £45.00

Please call for our day trip and holiday brochure
Tel: 01843 591007

1/2 PRICE OR LESS

SEE OUR MAIN AD

Dreams

Waiting for the ride:
Jacopo
Ebis,
half,
and Giacomo
de Stefano

Happy to

Report by Charlie Parkinson and Paul McMullan

newsdesk.times@krmmedia.co.uk

TERRIBLE weather may have stranded two international Italian rowers in Kent, but it may provide an unexpected boost in "eco tourism" for the area.

Giacomo de Stefano and fellow oarsman Jacopo Ebis were heading from London to Istanbul, in Turkey, in a Viking replica boat, when squalls made them take urgent cover in Whitstable.

They were offered emergency accommodation by Whitstable Yacht Club, before making their way to Faversham to repair their boat, Clodia.

Yacht Gostello has been so the R Sunday

"But ers was them v were b

"Wh using get all raise a Yacht club secretary Sally Costello said: "The weather has been so atrocious we had to cancel the RNLi Pursuit race last Sunday.

"But then these two Italian rowers washed up. I must say, one of them was pretty dishy and they were both really nice guys.

"When they told us they were using muscle power alone to get all the way to Turkey, to raise awareness of pollution and eco tourism, it was the least we could do to put them up."

After tracking Giacomo down to a bunk room at the yacht club, he said becoming stranded in Whitstable was one of the best things which had ever happened to him.

Love affair

He said: "I love Whitstable and we could never have expected to end up in such a wonderful place. We are doing interviews with UK and USA yachting magazines tomorrow and we hope to help put it on the sustainable tourism map."

Giacomo is passionate about

not using aviation fuel, or even petrol for cars and buses, to make travel possible, and now wants to promote Whitstable Oyster boats as an eco tourism facility.

The pair were given a night out on the town by Johnny Green, an ex-roadie for The Clash, and Richard Green, who is not related, of the Whitstable Oyster Fishery

Company. Giacomo and Stefano both gave up time and we called Peter for pictures of historic oyster

"We discussed using and building Smacks to be a different Whitstable.

"Our trip is sustainable to encourage. We eat here which is the best and when I said 'no'. I had a cup of tea.

"With the publicity we are getting will be the best Whitstable logical position.

One

The pair are on the Thames on a complete tour in October, a million oysters.

They need architects while they are here to improve the place in G. "The people are generous and a beautiful buildings which make

To follow visit www.whitstableoyster.com

Waiting for the tide: Jacopo Epis, left, and Giacomo de Stefano

HUNDREDS OF BEDS
1/2 PRICE OR LESS

SEE OUR MAIN AD

Dreams

etary Sally weather has ad to cancel race last

Italian rowet say, one of
by and they guys.

as they were alone to Turkey, to pollution was the out them

Giacomo
n at the coming ble was s which o him.

Whitstable ave espec-ch a won-
are doing
K and USA
s tomorrow put it on the map" onate about

Waiting for the tide:
Jacopo
Epis,
left,
and Giacomo
de Stefano

not using aviation fuel, or even petrol for cars and buses, to make travel possible, and now wants to promote Whitstable Oyster boats as an eco tourism facility.

The pair were given a night out on the town by Johnny Green, an ex-roadie for The Clash, and Richard Green, who is not related, of the Whitstable Oyster Fishery

Company. Giacomo added: "They both gave us such a wonderful time and we met a lovely old man called Peter who showed us old pictures of the town and the historic oyster boats.

"We discussed the possibility of using and building the old Oyster Smacks to bring high quality and a different form of tourism into Whitstable.

"Our trip is to promote sustainable tourism, as well as encouraging the local economy. We eat horrible plastic food, which is the same the world over, and when I went out in Whitstable and was offered a cappuccino, I said 'no'. I wanted a good local cup of tea.

"With the interviews and publicity we are getting for our trip, I will be telling everyone about Whitstable and the wonderful ecological possibilities of the town."

One million strokes

The pair set off from Henley-on-Thames on April 15, and hope to complete their 4,000 mile trip in October, after an estimated one million oar strokes.

They moored near the Shipwrights Arms, at Hollowshore, while they waited for conditions to improve. Faversham also won a place in Giacomo's heart. He said: "The people have been great, so generous and kind. Faversham is a beautiful town, with many old buildings and a town square, which makes me think of home."

To follow the pair's progress, visit www.manontheriver.com